RE: Driving in Saskatoon

Dear Sirs and Madams:

I thought it important enough that I should write to you about our recent driving experiences in Saskatoon; it's not really 'sour grapes' per se, although we now have less than warm feelings about Saskatoon.

As we were leaving your city (westward) on May 12, 2014 after a four day stay in Saskatoon as visitors, we received a fine (Ticket NO. 7953424) for speeding in the 60 kph zone on HWY 14/22nd Street, just before the Blairmore Suburban Centre as I recall. Our speed was apparently 87 kph. Exceeding any speed limit is not a habit of mine and my last violation I believe was in 1989 (or thereabouts) on a remote highway in BC.

The purpose of my letter is not to try and dispute the fine. The police constable was professional, polite, and willing to answer all my questions. No issues, he did his job. When I advised him that I hadn't had a speeding violation in the past 25 years, he said I could possibly have the fine reduced should I wish to challenge the ticket. Naturally I am unable to return to Saskatoon to do so. I also pointed out to the constable that they had an incorrect mailing and residential address on the ticket. Now to my feedback about on driving in Saskatoon.

First, I am fully understanding of the fact that your winters truly beat up your roads so we were constantly watching for holes in the roads and fortunately we didn't lose any tires or rims. We were staying at the Saskatoon Inn and we made a number of trips turning left off Airport Drive to go north on Circle Drive. I think the speed limit (going north on Circle Drive) prior to the turn-off to Airport Drive was 75 or 80 kph but trying to merge into traffic from the inside left lane was rather dangerous. Not only did the oncoming traffic from behind appear to be exceeding the speed limit, I had to guess where the lanes in the highway were located. I believe there would be three lanes on the road had there been lines to follow. When the road was busy I had to meet the speed (?) of the oncoming traffic in order to merge safely. Turning south off Circle Drive onto Idylwyld St. N., I had to remind myself that I needed to avoid a large dangerous hole(s) in the on-ramp road. While travelling down Idylwyld St at 30 kph (I believe that was the posted sign), I held up traffic to the point where people going around me seemed rather ticked off. (A similar principle applies outside the city on HWY 7 when driving slow, ie the speed limit, as a dangerous scenario is created with people trying to pass a long line of cars.....you likely are well aware of that, driving on the prairies I have learned, does require a different set of skills).

Driving near or at dark ws unsafe as making lane changes was terribly unnerving with the lack of lane markings, not to mention pedestrian crosswalks. This was especially bad when turning left across two or three (?) lanes to reach an inside left lane on the other side of the road (eg: turning left off Idylwyld N. onto Circle Dr). You could only guess where the lane would be and hoped that when you had to move over to the next right middle (?) lane that you got it right. In fast moving traffic, it became scary. You should all try it.....in the dark! But then you all familiar with your city roads.

Back to Hwy 14/22 ST. I couldn't question the fact that I passed a 60 kph road sign on our way out of town. We came off Circle Drive watching and judging the speed of cars in order to merge with Hwy 14 traffic, watching for lane markings, and watching for winter holes that may be in the road. During the next while I was consulting with my wife, who had the road map, about the route back to Calgary on Highway 7. I was also looking as far ahead as I could for highway directional signs with the need to be in the correct lane. At that point and location in time I remember that I also needed to determine what the speed limit might be; the fact we were on a divided highway with no apparent residential streets and intersections, I then judged it to be between 75 and 90 kph, similar to the limits posted on Circle Drive in places. It was shortly after that the police officer informed me that the speed limit was 60! I was rather shocked as I'm sure were the others, who were pulled over. It became obvious while observing the surroundings that anyone living in Saskatoon or familiar with that section of road would be well aware of familiar speed traps along that section of highway leading out of town.

I can only be left with a thought that the location of this 'speed trap' is somewhat orchestrated, especially for people leaving the city and not returning. Few would be able to return in July to exercise their legal right (as stated on the Offence Notice/Ticket) to dispute the ticket should they truly believe an error was made. I'm certain many others would agree. As you know it can certainly generate a lot of income for the city and the police department. And I'm sure the police officers get a chuckle out of how many tickets they write from time to time on that section of highway. I have absolutely no issue with keeping traffic speed within safe margins but I can only hope that the police speed checks are spread evenly around the city of Saskatoon and not just for those people (tourists and business people to name a few) leaving the city of Saskatoon on Highway 14. Naturally Saskatoon is a large city now but we did not see any other police checks during our time there.

I will be mailing our $137.00 fine today to Regina. I can only hope that my contribution to the city will help fill the holes (some dangerous) in the roads and most important to put lane markings on the roads asap, or at the very least small white square markings that would help describe the lanes at night. And your new police headquarters look great.

To sum up, I feel very lucky that we left Saskatoon without being involved in a traffic accident.

Thank you all for your time,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to be "J. L. Lamo", written over the typed text "Thank you all for your time,".

To whom it may concern, I am Kyle Loehndorf, an eighteen year old born and raised in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan. Growing up in the province with the highest crime rate per-capita has raised some thoughts on dilemmas I believe Canada should be focusing on instead of the way it is being dealt with currently.

In the last decade, crime seems to be one of the most major concerns in Canada. According to StatsCan crime has decreased approximately twenty-eight percent in the last ten years due to the programs and policies that have been put in place to prevent further crime. It also states that only thirty-one percent of crimes are being reported due to the fact that people do not have trust in our law enforcement. These programs are costing Canada billions to enforce in a time when many other areas of the world are not financially stable. Though the decrease is significant and should be celebrated, the fact that the "Tough on Crime" policy has been doubled down on while crime is at such a low point may not be a smart move. There are other problems that this money and time can be focused on such as subsidizing schooling for young citizens, infrastructure across provinces, healthcare, and assessing the needs of people living in poverty. Canada is lucky to be in such a stable position and should take advantage of this by improving as a whole. The citizens of Canada are what make this country what it is, being a democratic society; the needs of the people are what should be focused on. Crime prevention could be handled much more effectively and cheaply if the people of Canada would get more involved. This can be achieved by creating a trusting government and law enforcement by listening to what people have to say. Is this major decreasing in crime just another long-term trend or has it been worth spending billions to get where we are today? Thank you for taking the time to read about my concerns and I'll appreciate the response.

Hi there,

I just wanted to mention that I think your organization is doing a fantastic job (esp via social media) of keeping people informed of the happenings within the city. Plus, it sounds like your members are generally kicking butt and arresting bad guys, which is fantastic.

The past few years you've done an incredible job with rebuilding the reputation of the service (which seemed like an impossible task to an outsider like me). Make sure to make time to reflect on the hard work you have done, and the difference you make in people's lives on a daily basis.

Thank you for everything that you do to keep us safe in our community. Rock on, SPS

I received a call from a woman who lives on Wedge Road near Dundonald School. She was very pleased to see the police in the area as they have had many problems over the years with buses, cars, parking, etc. She noted there is a Commissionaire who works in the area which has been somewhat helpful but she really believes the police presence will make a difference and would love to see you in the area again!

Subject: Kudos from HUB

We dealt with a [REDACTED] at HUB yesterday and some feedback was provided by Terry Gibson with Mental Health – Housing Unit on how impressed they were with how police handled this woman they dealt with on Jan 3/2014 on Police file—2014-904.

They said that the way police handled this delicate situation was extremely professional and they were impressed. Upon reviewing the report it shows Cst. Holeha dealt with the female at scene, as well as Sgt. Bzdel.

Just wanted to pass on kudos for a job well done. ☺

I will never forget the professionalism of the SPS that night, while I was on the phone in panic mode or when they were on the ground. To all the SPS who attended the scene of the tragic accident on 22nd street,
As one of the 1st on scene, as I was on my way to take my 15 year old daughter to her ball hockey game, and came to the accident site within moments of it occurring, and being an emergency nurse myself, I was met with a member of the SPS who encouraged me to begin assisting the patients. This was followed by multiple other officers, medics, and fire fighters. I was greatly impressed by the leadership and respect that everyone showed each other, and towards myself. I tried to assist with whatever patient treatment and extraction that I could as a nurse, and felt the team approach very strongly in this situation. I am very impressed how it was all handled. The scene was managed very effectively and securely. And the utmost respect was given to the patients and victims.
I work in a well controlled emergency room with minimal distractions for my job, and I often take for granted this, and don't always think of the challenges of working at a scene. Your SPS team is exceptional and needs more recognition for the phenomenal job you do.
I commend you all and thank you for the hard work you do for us.

Office of the City Solicitor

To: City Manager Date: May 29, 2014

And To: Board of Police Commissioners Phone: 975-3270

From: B. H. Rossmann, Q.C. Our File: 102.0434
Solicitor Your File: 2,012

Re: Special Events and Police Special Duty

This memorandum addresses City Council's questions to this Office as to the legalities and implications of utilizing private security options at festivals.

I have had the advantage of reading Chief Weighill's excellent detailed report to the Board of Police Commissioners and Executive Committee, and then hearing his address to Executive Committee on April 28, 2014. This report should be read in conjunction with Chief Weighill's report. No further background need be provided.

Chief Weighill's report describes the detailed review that is undertaken by all "regulatory" parties - various City Departments, Saskatoon Police Service and Saskatchewan Liquor and Gaming Authority with respect to each application to hold summer festivals on City-owned lands or parks.

The Saskatoon Police Service is the expert as to what level of policing would be required with respect to any given activity and perceived risk that might be associated with it, whether these activities be festivals or other activities.

As to use of private security vs. police, as Chief Weighill points out, private security personnel, as with ordinary citizens, have more limited powers of arrest. For example, private security personnel may be empowered to eject intoxicated persons from the "premises", but do not have the powers to arrest such persons, as do police, if warranted.

I am satisfied that the City's review process of applications to use City-owned lands and parks as described meets any duty the City has to oversee and set criteria or conditions for activities to take place on city property. The review is done on a case by case basis and considers the needs and risks involved individually. That being the case, the risk for legal liability is low should an unfortunate event occur.

Whether or not the cost of Special Duty Police, as might be judged warranted, should be borne by the organizer or the public at large is a philosophic question this report does not purport to address.

“PUBLIC AGENDA”

TO: His Worship Don Atchison, Chairperson
Board of Police Commissioners

FROM: Clive Weighill
Office of the Chief

DATE: 2014 June 09

SUBJECT: Criminal Record Check Fees

FILE #: 2006-4

ISSUE:

As of June 1, 2014 the RCMP are mandating that all fingerprint submissions must be submitted electronically. The RCMP are charging the Saskatoon Police Service $25.00 for every electronic submission for non-volunteer Vulnerable Sector checks.

RECOMMENDATION:

That the Board of Police Commissioners support the increase in fees for Criminal Record checks as found in Appendix A.

BACKGROUND:

The last subsequent change to the Criminal Record Check fee structure was made in 2009. Between 2009 and 2013 the total number of Criminal Record Checks has increased by 33%.

In addition to this volume increase, the June 1, 2014 deadline for electronic fingerprint submissions has required the purchase of specialized equipment for the capture and electronic submission of fingerprints. The approximate price of a functioning workstation is $28,000.00.

The fee of $25.00 from the RCMP for the submission of non-volunteer Vulnerable Sector fingerprints is another reason for the restructuring of the Criminal Record Check fee.

DISCUSSION:

The proposed increases to the Criminal Record Check fees apply only to the checks where we are charged $25.00 by the RCMP. In these cases we propose increasing the fee by $35.00 to cover the RCMP fee and contribute toward the required equipment.

Appendix A provides a breakdown of the new proposed fee structure. These proposed changes will bring the Saskatoon Police Service into line with other Western Canadian Police Services as shown in Appendix B.

"PUBLIC AGENDA"

CONCLUSION:

The changes to the Criminal Record Check Fee Structure are required to offset new Charges from the RCMP and the cost of the new Electronic Fingerprint Workstations.

Written by: Jeff Bent, Superintendent Criminal Investigations

Approved by: Bernie Pannell
Deputy Chief of Operations

Submitted by:

Clive Weighill
Chief of Police

Dated: June 9 2014
