Artwork by Yuka Yamaguchi

Driven by Zen Buddhist philosophy and the belief that life's meaning is found in giving, self-taught, Saskatoon-based Japanese immigrant Yuka Yamaguchi views drawing as her way of giving back. Using coloured pencils, she creates intuitive, hybrid drawings merging human forms with nature to explore the meaning of physical existence when the mind controls us. Her perspective is also quietly informed by her background in social work. She has exhibited locally and globally, including in NY, LA, Rome, and Tokyo.
