

FIRST NATION COMMUNITY PROFILE

About RED PHEASANT CREE NATION

Historically, Red Pheasant Cree Nation people hunted and fished along the Battle River. As settlers moved into the Battleford region, they began conducting trade. In 1878, the Band settled on their reserve in the Eagle Hills, where the land was good for agriculture and there was enough forest to enable them to hunt. In recent years, Red Pheasant Cree Nation began investing in strategic land purchases with settlement funds from their Treaty Land Entitlement Agreements and partnering with resource companies such as Wascana Energy.

HIGHLIGHTS AND OPPORTUNITIES

- Red Pheasant Cree Nation signed Treaty 6 on September 9, 1876.
- Red Pheasant Cree Nation owns 14,000 acres of land in several communities around the province, including 78.3 acres in Saskatoon.
- Red Pheasant Cree Nation is a shareholder with Battlefords Agency Tribal Chiefs (BATC) Gamex Bingo, Gold Eagle Casino (North Battleford), General Plumbing (North Battleford) and Jackfish Lodge (Jackfish Lake).
- Land acquisitions have created more business opportunities for band members including hunting, fishing, outfitting, and the mining of undisposed surface minerals, with a 50/50 split with the government.
